POLICE COURT JOTTINGS

No less than sixty cases faced Judge Andrade on his return this morning from a few days' sick leave.
Most of the offenses were against the gambling law, and McDuffie and staff spent most of their morning in the court.

The Waimalu bunch, who were caught last week, were in court, and the case had not come on up till noon, when court adjourned till two o'clock.

Ahana and Ab Hee, who are charged with looting well, but not wisely, were committed to the Circuit Court for trial.

Yamasaki, the Japanese woman who was caught red-handed selling booze at Waikehu, on February 3, had the case against her postponed, as she had already been heavily fined for a similar offense.

R. L. Givens, a Fort Sugar soldier, who was accused of having stolen $8.75 from a notorious house at twile, was allowed to depart by Judge Andrade, but told to appear in court on Saturday next, when the decision will be given. Givens told a straight story in court, and it would appear that the charge is a trumped-up one to get even with the soldier for some reason or other.

"Jack No. 1" is well known as the police station, and this morning when he appeared before Judge Andrade he was sentenced to ninety days' jail. Jack hails from Fiji, and seems to have become very fond of liquid refreshment since his leaving cannibal land. There is probably, as far as natives go, in that part of the world.

WITH MAN-EATER

William Barker, a wealthy manufacturer and business man of Portland, Ore., and Mrs. Barker, who are spending a few weeks in the islands, will have occasion for some time to come to recall their experience with large and ferocious maneating sharks off Honolulu harbor.

The Barkers are at present guests at the Moana Hotel. Saturday they formed a party, and under the guidance of "Jack" Young and Chief Mate Oswald Stevens, left in the launch P. D. Q. for the feeding grounds of the sharks.

Towing a full-grown and recently-deceased eel, considered as a tempting carload on tilt-bit, as bait, the party left the harbor on Saturday afternoon. In company with the Barkers was Lieutenant Birchfield of the Marines. They lay outside the harbor for several hours before they secured a rise.

The first specimen of the big maneaters fell to the iron and unerring aim of Jack Young of the Young Brothers. After a battle of a half hour or more, the big fish was finally subdued, only after he had thrashed the water into a foam and towed the launch far to sea.

Barker soon followed with a smaller shark, which nearly succeeded in spilling him into the sea.
The visitor had a spirited engagement with the fish before he was ironed and added to the catch.

To Lieutenant Birchfield fell a 12-foot shark, which was ironed only after all hands had participated in the free-for-all encounter.

Mr. Barker, nothing daunted by his first experience, tackled the shark again and landed another specimen of large size.

Fourteen rows of teeth were taken.
The party found themselves off Pearl Harbor at the close of the day's sport. It was nearly 9 o'clock that evening before the party returned to Honolulu harbor.

Another party has been arranged for this afternoon.

GAMBLING RAID
AT KAHUKU

Chief McDuffie and his officers made an auto trip to Kahuku yesterday, and there ran a game of fan tan to earth.
The game was in full blast when the detectives dropped in to say good evening.

The trip out was made in good time and after the machine had been left in a quiet spot, the officers hid in a yard for some time till the coast was clear and the game getting interesting. A line of lanterns was laid along the only path the police officers could take to the house and the watchman was very keen about watching them.

Should one of the lights be put out it meant that there was danger.

However, the lantern difficulty was gotten over by the detectives, and a combined rush made for the house.
Twenty-nine Celestials were gathered in and they all put up bail of $10 each. The case against them in the Police Court this morning was sent over till February 19. Lorrin Andrews appeared for the bunch, and on his suggestion the matter went over.
